

LEARN HOW TO LEAD YOUR AGENCY'S CRISIS RESPONSE TRAINING

Crisis Response Programs and Training (CRPT) can prepare you to train law enforcement on the crisis response training curriculum developed under a cooperative agreement awarded by the US Department of Justice, Bureau of Justice Assistance, and being utilized to train law enforcement worldwide.

The Training

This training, known as Crisis Response Intervention Training (CRIT) is a 40-hour training program designed to prepare police officers in their response to people experiencing mental health and substance use crises and intellectual and developmental disabilities. The training is based upon the original Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) training and is designed to complement the development and delivery of crisis response programs.

CRIT's overall goals are officer safety, public safety, and diversion from the criminal justice system when possible. The curriculum builds knowledge and skills to:

- Expand officers' knowledge of mental health conditions, substance use disorders, and intellectual and developmental disabilities,
- Create connections with people with lived experience,
- Enhance officers' awareness of community services,
- De-escalate crisis situations, and
- Support officer safety and wellness.

The Train-the-Trainer

Crisis Response Programs and Training offers a 4-day in-person train-the-trainer of the CRIT course.

Participants learn how to:

- Deliver the 40-hour training course,
- Select and prepare site visits,
- Select and train course instructors,
- Conduct scenario-based training,
- Select and train role players,
- And much more!

CRPT's train-the-trainer is co-taught by mental health and police instructors with experience teaching crisis response intervention training and working in crisis response services. Our instructors will call upon their experience and expertise to make certain that participants leave feeling confident in coordinating this training in their communities.

Whether you are offering crisis response training for the first time, or want to improve your existing course—this train-the-trainer is for you!
